Erothanatos has not faced such trouble for a long time to publish an issue like this one. We tried to publish a special issue on Translation Studies but failed. Yes, we failed—failed miserably.

So, this is a makeshift issue for the scholarly article section. We are thankful to the scholars who immediately responded with their contributions. Thanks to the poets who waited so long for this issue. But the poems we have received for this issue are probably the poems we ever published. So, again we thank them all who contributed.
